

The Secrets of Cycling Countries

Ayrton San Joquin, Bertrand Yan, Golam Rabbani

RESEARCH COOKS
WITH A PROJECT

Denmark

A cycling country and Germany (for half a day)

Our Route

1 week at Copenhagen, Aalborg, and Aarhus

800+ kms of cycling for 3 weeks

We had plans...

We were fed

and well rested

Things got rough at times

~~From Nykøbing to Tønder plan
Original Stop for 1st Hummer
Then to AERØ by bus
Then Sonderborg
Day 1 ICL train + 116 bus to Tønder
Here to AERØ leave by 10am
5km to Nykøbing
710 R bus to Marskøff Nakskov
x 10km from Tønder to Tars Ferry to Sønderborg
10km to Rønnebærg
Ferry to Marsal
10km to Arøsøbing~~

Rain and cold

Change of plans

AJ's misfortunes

But it always got better

Skies and fjords

Sunny days

People

Some things we learnt

01

Everyone cycles but they're not all cyclists

02

Respect requires understanding from everyone

03

No bad weather, only bad clothing

04

When there's a need, there's a way

Everyone cycles but they're not all cyclists

Respect requires understanding from everyone

No bad
weather,
only bad
clothing

When there's a need,
there's a way

Imagining this in Singapore

Photo by shawnanggg on Unsplash

Thank You

A large, white, serif font "Thank You" is centered in the middle of the image. Below it, two long shadows of the person taking the photo are cast onto a paved path. The path leads towards a beach where a few people are walking along the water's edge under a bright blue sky with scattered clouds.

“great people, great infrastructure, terrible weather. In my view, it’s basically a biker’s paradise on a warm sunny day.”
- Bert

